The School of Education at Queen's

As you will discover we have an astonishing range of courses on offer, all stamped with the Queen's guarantee of excellence. With over a hundred years experience of offering part-time provision no-one understands better than us the pressures on those trying to juggle the demands of busy lives with study requirements. Over that period we are proud to have helped many thousands achieve their educational goals, develop their careers and enrich their lives. Today, we'd like to extend those opportunities to you. The choice has never been richer; no matter which course you pick, we can assure you of a very warm welcome.

Why study part-time at Queen's?

What better way to meet the challenge of these difficult economic times than to grasp the initiative and upgrade your skills base, opening the door to a wide range of new opportunities and broadening your career options?

Whether you're thinking of a new career or are looking to enhance your chances of promotion, studying part-time is the ideal solution. Cost effective and flexible, it can accommodate the busiest of lifestyles as we ensure you work at the pace that suits you, not us, whether you're going for a first degree or an accredited vocational qualification.

Queen's students can be confident the best academics and practitioners are teaching them. Independent assessments of teaching standards at Queen's confirm its place in the top rank of UK universities. The University offers both first-class academic resources like the McClay Library and an extensive range of support services and facilities to underpin a fulfilling student experience.
