WHY STUDY HUMANITIES AT MILES COLLEGE?

The Division of Humanities offers a major in English, a major in Theatre and two in Music (B.A. in Music, B.M.E.). The English major is a program which affords the options of earning a liberal arts degree in English or a Bachelor of Science degree in Language Arts Education, with the State of Alabama Class B Secondary Teaching Certificate. A student is eligible for the Bachelor's degree in any of the two areas upon satisfactory completion of a prescribed General Education Program of the College and the specific requirements of the Humanities Division. A total of 129 hours is required for a Bachelor of Arts Degree in English. A total of 125 hours is required for the B.A. in Theatre. A total of 132 hours is required for the B.A. in Music and 135 hours for the B.M.E. (Bachelor in Music Education). In addition to the three major programs, the Division offers an English Minor, Theatre/Drama Minor, Music minor, Religion/Philosophy minor, and African-American Literature/Studies minors.

MISSION

Through multiplicative offerings of art, dance, drama, English, foreign languages, humanities, music, philosophy, religion, and speech, the Humanities Division Mission is to graduate students with and to sensitize students to the vast array of cultural arts and to the variety of religious creeds – Christian ethics in particular – and to enable all students to leave the college with standard English proficiency and strong critical thinking, speaking, reading, listening, and writing skills.
