Why an MBA International?

Designed for recent graduates with little or no professional work experience, the MBA International at the Kenneth Levene Graduate School of Business prepares students to become future managers in an increasingly globalized business environment. This program is specifically designed to prepare students for their first professional career position in a marketplace that is characterized by increasingly fierce competition, scarce natural resources, and increased demands on corporations in both the developed and developing world. The MBA International is designed to give graduates the ability to adapt, manage and lead in rapidly-evolving markets where cross-cultural expertise is required to deal with unprecedented global challenges and opportunities.
